

Huda Aishath Maldives

“ At a very young age I developed a fascination for the impact of various colour combinations and nature. Influenced by my artistic mother, I started painting around that time. My art continues the fascination for nature with vivid colours, light and reflections.

I work with watercolour, acrylic, oil and mixed media. I have tried and experimented with different techniques and found out that the bold strokes of oil and acrylic on canvas is something I will never get bored of.

I have worked in various art-related fields as a freelance fine artist and have been teaching art for more than six years. I am currently practicing my artistry as an art teacher in Iskandhar School, passing on my passion to the next generation of Maldivian artists. I hope to make the transition to a full-time freelance artist and continue to expand my client base within the country and abroad and promote Maldivian art to a wider audience through exhibitions and showcases. ”
